Proudly Serving the Military since 1936.

GEICO salutes our Military members. We’ve made it our mission to not only provide you and your family with great coverage, but also to offer flexible payment options, numerous discounts, and overseas coverage to suit the demands of your unique lifestyle.

We stand ready to serve you. Get a free quote today.
It is hard to believe we are halfway through the year. Children have been out of school for a month already, kids are getting restless at home and the family is running out of fun things to do. Family and MWR is full of opportunities for you to make memories right here in YOUR backyard while you enjoy the rest of your summer vacation. Take the rest of your summer to slow down, relax and enjoy your family and friends. Family and MWR is here to help you do just that!

This month’s magazine feature’s the beauty of the area that is right outside your backdoor. Many of which are in Cumberland Valley or activities that are offered here on Carlisle Barracks. Stop by Outdoor Recreation over by the Commissary and PX to rent the outdoor equipment you may need or sign up for a trip. They have tents, grills, sleeping bags and other camping equipment for rent. Additionally, they have kayaks, paddles and canoes for rental. If you’re not sure what available outdoor fun this area has to offer, Outdoor Recreation will help you find the trip loaded with fun for your whole family. They have guided kayaking, basic and mountain biking and hiking trips. Every trip is different, so it won’t be a problem to find the best trip for you and your family to enjoy!

If the outdoors isn’t for your family, Carlisle and the surrounding areas offer a wide variety of family activities. Our Leisure Travel Services, located at Carlisle Barracks or Fort Indiantown Gap, is ready to show you all the fantastic places to take your family. They have discount tickets to Hersheypark, Baltimore Aquarium and much more. Downtown Carlisle is full of family fun as well. There are a number of different restaurants with an array of backgrounds and cultures, museums, historic tours, wine tasting and shopping. Gettysburg is just a short drive south that offers history and fun for all ages. You can tour the battlefields, go on ghost tours, see museums or grab a bite to eat downtown. The Cumberland Valley and surrounding areas are full of activities and Family and MWR is here to help you and your family have the best summer possible.

The Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation hope that whether you find our Family and MWR services at Fort Indiantown Gap, Letterkenny Amy Depot or here at Carlisle Barracks that we are helping you find ways to relax, reconnect with family, enjoy time by the pool or in the great outdoors.

What is Family and Morale, Welfare & Recreation?

In 1940 a branch within the Army was established known as the Morale Division which later became known as “Special Services.” Family and MWR is a group of men and women who provide support and leisure activities to our Soldiers (active duty, Reserve, and Guard) their Families, military retirees, and civilian employees. Currently working in Family and MWR are approximately 37,000 employees worldwide and their mission is to deliver quality programs to Soldiers and their Families.
On the Cover
July is often regarded as the middle of summer and filled with vacations, picnics, water sports, summer camp, sitting under the stars at night and catching fireflies. As we are spending time with families and friends on the 4th of July, let’s take not just that day, but every day to remember to say thanks to the U.S. Armed Forces and their children and families for the sacrifices they make to help protect our freedom.

Abbie Shireman is the new Assistant Business Manager at Fort Indiantown Gap Community Club in Annville. She joins us with almost 10 years of manager experience. She enjoys spending time with her husband, Steve, and her two teenage kids, Stephanie and Jared. She loves camping and also volunteers with the Stony Valley National Wild Turkey Federation. It is the largest conservation organization in the country and she works closely with the Pennsylvania Game Commission. In her free time, she busies herself perfecting her hobby of pyrography which is the art of decorating wood or leather by burning an image onto the surface. She is excited to be a part of the FMWR team at Fort Indiantown Gap and looks forward to many years of joyfully serving the troops and surrounding community in Annville, Pennsylvania.
Dear Legal Eagle:

My siblings and I inherited land near a lake where we spent our vacation days growing up. I haven’t been up in years, but recently we held a family reunion weekend there. I noticed neighbors and others cutting across our land to get to the lake faster. My siblings and I asked them to stop, but these people say that there is an agreement for them to use our land. We have now put up a fence and signs to stop them, but they say they are entitled to use our land. Can they use my land without my permission?

Sadly, your neighbors might have an easement or legal right to use your land for travel. Easements can be created many ways:

- Frequently using land without permission for a long period of time.
- There is prior history or use of the land.
- There is a need to use the land, such as being landlocked.
- The easement was granted in the past.

Easements are usually recorded on the deed at your local county assessor’s office. You should first see if the deed to your property gives your neighbors permission to cross your land. If the deed includes permission for your neighbors to use your land then you must allow them to use your land unless they agree not to use your land. If you talk to your neighbor and they agree not to use your land make sure you get it signed and in writing.

If there is no easement, your neighbors could have gained permission to use your land from the previous owners, which is called a license. Unlike an easement, a license can be revoked. You can put up a fence and notices to inform people that they may no longer traverse your private property.

Dear Legal Eagle: My neighbors have a row of trees that grow right next to the fence separating our properties. The tree branches grow over on my side of the fence, and my yard gets covered in leaves and broken branches throughout the year. Recently I’ve noticed the roots are now growing in my yard and destroying the planters and paved walkway. I’ve talked to my neighbor and asked her to either take care of the leaves in the fall or trim the branches. I even offered to help pay, but she refuses because the trees won’t look as nice if they are asymmetric. Is there anything I can do?

In Pennsylvania, and some other states, tree branches and roots that grow and invade your yard from another property are considered to be trespassing on your land. Therefore, you could exercise self-help and cut the invasive branches and roots so that nothing is encroaching on your land. If you incur a reasonable expense in removing the branches and roots, you can recover those expenses from your neighbor. You can also ask a court to compel your neighbor to remove the trees to the point of encroachment (but this process could take longer and involve court fees and/or attorney fees). In Pennsylvania you don’t have to show that there is any harm or damage to the land to act, you have the right to enjoy your land free of any trespass.

Legal Eagle is brought to you this month by the Carlisle Barracks Legal Assistance Office (717) 245-4940; Madison Hales, Dickinson Law Student, and CPT Katie Dang, Judge Advocate. RESIDENTIAL BROKERAGE
A family getaway to Hersheypark adds up to fun for everyone! Thrill seekers will love our 13 thrilling roller coasters, younger kids can’t get enough of the over 20 rides just their size, and the entire family will enjoy splashing, floating, and cooling off in our 15 fun-filled water attractions at The Boardwalk At Hersheypark.

In addition, clap, dance along, and marvel at our award-winning live entertainment, get a picture with our larger-than-life, strolling Hershey’s Product Characters, and savor the tastes of summer with our delicious Park food and treats.

Only in Hershey can you combine two great family getaways with a trip to the theme park and a day at The Boardwalk At Hersheypark! The Boardwalk is located inside Hersheypark and included in your regular one-price admission.

While in Hersheypark, stroll across the bridge to ZooAmerica, our 11-acre walk-through zoo with more than 200 native animals from five regions of North America. It’s included in your Hersheypark admission when entered from within the park and open daily year-round as a separate attraction.

In addition to enjoying all the rides, entertainment, and games of our theme park and all the water attractions, beach-style games, shops, and music in The Boardwalk At Hersheypark, your time at Hersheypark isn’t complete without visiting Hershey’s Chocolate World attraction too!

Everyone always wants more time to really maximize their visit – which is why our ticket plans offer so many flexible options and the opportunity to save big! And after you leave Hersheypark, keep the fun going at the Official Resorts of Hersheypark, including The Hotel Hershey, Hershey Lodge, and Hershey Highmeadow Campground.

Be among the first to drop in on the thrills and fun at the new-for-2017, Hershey Triple Tower, the first choose-your-thrill triple tower in the United States, open in Kissing Tower Hill.

Hershey’s Tower
Standing at 189 feet high, our tallest drop tower features two gravity-defying experiences, SPACE SHOT & TURBO DROP, which rockets riders to the top before blasting back to the bottom at 45 miles per hour!

Reese’s Tower
Standing at 131 feet high, kick it up a notch with two thrilling cycles of positive and negative G forces on our second tallest drop tower!

Hershey’s Kisses Tower
Standing at 80 feet high, warm up with two exhilarating cycles of positive and negative G forces on our thrilling drop tower!

Hersheypark is just one of many discounted tickets that is offered by Leisure Travel Services (LTS). We have Baltimore Aquarium, Colonial Williamsburg, Medieval Times, Disneyworld, Universal Studios, PA Renaissance Faire and more trip ideas and opportunities to save.

Let us help you with your summer-fun at LTS located on Carlisle Barracks right next to the Commissary, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. 4:30 p.m. We are also at Letterkenny Army Depot on Tuesdays and the Fort Indiantown Gap Community Club on Wednesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.

By purchasing your tickets with Family and Moral, Welfare & Recreation, you directly support soldier and family programs and help grow the services and programs that benefit you. For more information on LTS, call 717-245-4048.

The Declaration of Independence

By: Mary Stockwell, Ph.D.

On the evening of July 9, 1776, thousands of Continental soldiers who had come from Boston to defend New York City from the British marched to the parade grounds in Lower Manhattan. General George Washington had ordered them to assemble promptly at six o’clock to hear a declaration approved by the Continental Congress calling for American independence from Great Britain.

Washington, like many others in the army, had been waiting for this declaration for some time. He had grown impatient with representatives who hoped for reconciliation with the mother country. To those who believed peace commissioners were on their way to the colonies to effect this reconciliation, Washington responded that the only people heading to the colonies were Hessian mercenaries. Even as his men waited to hear the proclamation read aloud to them, Washington knew that thousands of Hessians and even more redcoats were landing on Staten Island, preparing for an attack on New York.

The Continental Congress had voted for independence on July 2. Two days later on July 4, a declaration explaining the reasons for independence, largely written by Thomas Jefferson, had also been adopted. Washington received official notification when a letter dated July 6 arrived from John Hancock, the president of the Continental Congress, along with a copy of the declaration.

Hancock explained that Congress had struggled with American independence for some time, and even after making this momentous decision many members were worried about its consequences. He concluded that Americans would have to rely on the “Being who controls both Causes and Events to bring about his own determination,” a sentiment which Washington shared. For the commander-in-chief, who needed to lead his untrained army against Great Britain, the decision for independence came as welcome news, especially since his men would now fight not merely in defense of their colonies but for the birth of a new nation.

As Washington’s soldiers stood ready for the brigadiers and colonels of their regiments to read the Declaration of Independence, they first heard words written by their commander. Washington explained that Congress had “dissolved the connection” between “this country” and Great Britain and declared the “United Colonies of North America” to be “free and independent states.”

Next came Jefferson’s stirring words explaining that all men were created equal and endowed by their Creator with the inalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Since George III had trampled on these rights, as Jefferson argued in a long list of complaints against him, the people of the United States of America had the right to break the political bands that tied them to Great Britain and form a new government where the people would rule themselves. The words were so moving that citizens who had heard the declaration raced down Broadway toward a large statue of George III. They toppled and decapitated it, later melting down the body for bullets that would be much needed in the coming battles to defend New York and the new nation that lay beyond it.
